

CONTROLLER

Charles Quaid is responsible for providing accounting and finance leadership to PBGH and its subsidiaries. This includes general oversight of accounting operations, managing investment activity, ensuring the timely production financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, shepherding the budget process, maintaining adequate financial controls, coordinating audits and tax filings, and providing the organization's leadership with periodic business analysis.

Mr. Quaid brings 17 years of non-profit accounting expertise to PBGH. For the past 12 years he has held Controller or CFO level positions in organizations similar in size and complexity to PBGH. In those roles he was responsible for providing financial and accounting leadership as well as oversight of areas such as risk management, information technology and human resources. Most recently he was CFO of Yosemite National Institutes, an environmental education organization that provides a field-based science curriculum to students in cooperation with several National Parks.
